Unforgettable Week

Sherwill 4-H Club

by Carolyn Giles

That wonderful time of the year has arrived once again – time for summer camping. One of the most interesting and fulfilled weeks of the summer will be spent by 4-H youths, ages 15-19, from all over Virginia at Virginia Beach where Conservation Camp will be held at Camp Farrar this week, July 13-18. I KNOW! I was there as a camper this same week last year.

This camp was established many years ago, in the early 1900's, and was named in honor of a pioneer in 4-H work – Mr. Farrar – who devoted much of his time and energy to the organization and construction of it.

It is located near the northern end of Virginia Beach. It poses a rustic picture – with it's log cabins set back from the ocean among a grove of pines with it's sandy footing.

We traveled on a chartered bus. As the miles rolled by and the bus moved on toward the eastern shore the scenery changed from the rolling hills of Piedmont to the level sandy fields of Tidewater. The forest changed from hardwood trees to the pines which are dominant on the eastern shore.

Upon our arrival we were welcomed with cooling refreshments.

The food here was always plentiful and delicious!

Each camper was made a member of one of four tribes – Soil Savers, Forest Rangers, Game Protectors or Insect Controlers. The tribes competed against each other in athletics and other activities.

There was a great variety in entertaining programs each night. One night, to get acquainted with each other, one half of a picture was pinned on the back of each camper and the object was to find a partner wearing the matching half of the picture. Another activity, "International Night", was most interesting and lots of fun! Each tribe put on a skit depicting customs, etc., of a certain country. With these clues the name of the country was to be guessed.

Each day the campers attended classes having to do with conservation. In the afternoon, each individual could choose two of the following activities in which to participate – oceanography, firearms safety, archery, human conservation and wildland ecology.

A very interesting tour was conducted through a swamp for wildland ecology.

One of the highlights of the day was an hour's swim in the ocean during the morning and the afternoon.

One of the most inspirational occasions during the week was the early morning worship service on the beach, watching the sun rise. There in the background happened to be two surfers and a large ship silhoutted against the sky. This was a beautiful scene!

On Friday night, our last night there, the candle lighting ceremony was held on a quiet sand dune. A flare descended on a wire and lit afire the logs which were carefully laid for the bonfire. This was a spectacular scene – as though a shooting star had fallen from the sky. As the flames rose the sand around us lit up as though the sun might have been shining. Even the pine trees appeared ghostly!

As the candles were lighted there were mixed emotions – one of happiness at the prospect of going home and telling about the wonderful experience we had shared with the other two hundred and fifty campers and the other one of regret at having to leave this "fun" place and the many friends we had made.

We all agreed that this had been one glorious week and that we also had learned much of the importance of conservation to man.

It's been pointed out that poor money management, family illness and over - borrowing are the three most important reasons some families get behind in paying their bills and are branded "slow pay."

A good manager distinguishes between needs, wants and "nice to haves."

Some family finance specialists recommend accumulating an emergency fund of three months living expenses to tide them over unexpected financial problems.

Care should be exercised when grazing Sorghum - Sudan -mixtures. These summer forage plants will turn out a lot of forage. Remember they contain excessive amounts of prussic acid during and immediately following droughts.

To avoid prussic acid poisoning wait until Sorghum-Sudan is 30 inches tall. Sudan grass should be grazed at 20 inches tall.

Richard Nash decided not to take a chance and seeded pearl millet. Production isn't as great but there's no acid problems.

The projected figure of 208,500 for 1990 predicted by the Division of State Planning and Community Affairs, compares with a present estimate of 188,839 persons for the area.

The overall state population, estimated at approximately 4 million now, is expected to reach anywhere from 5.8 million to an even 6 million by 1980 — almost double a 1950 census of 3.3 million.

District 11, was the 12th fastest growing area during the past decade, going from a 1960 population of 150,877.

Appomattox County was the slowest growing among the counties, with a population jump of only 1.1 per cent during the past 10 years — from 9,148 persons to a present estimated 10,120. A 1.8 per cent increase, to 12,400 is projected by 1980, which will place Appomattox ahead of Bedford County and the cities of Bedford and Lynchburg in future growth rate.

Mrs. A. J. Zastrow holds a Confederate Cross of the Legion of Honor, one of two she owns. A search has been launched by the UDC to locate 2,500 of the Maltese Cross medals issued sometime after 1900 to Confederate veterans.

Search Underway For Cross Of Honor

"Who may have one or know of one? It's a small Danneburg or Maltese Cross of bronze with a Battle flag on its face surrounded by a wreath of laurel leaves with the inscription 'United Daughters of the Confederacy to U.C.V. One of the reverse side is the motto of the Confederate States 'Deo Vindice' (God our vindicator) 1861-1865.'

Mrs. A. J. Zastrow, of Spout Spring, president of the Appomattox Chapter, UDC, knew exactly what the Va. Division was hunting for when she read the description above, because she has two such Crosses, one presented to Mr. Schyler Coleman, her father and another given to her mother's brother, C. S. Cawthon.

According to the brochure asking about the Crosses, the idea of a Cross for the men of the Confederate Army and Navy came from Mrs. Alexander S. Erwin. Some 2,500 of the small bronze emblems were cast and issued April 17, 1900.

Now a committee headed by Mrs. Thomas C. Jennings of Luray, has been asked to locate as many of these crosses and report who received them and what the person having them wants to do with them.

Times-Virginian readers are invited to get in touch with Mrs. Zastrow if they have one of the Crosses. Each one was bestowed on a Veteran of the Army or Navy or their widows or oldest living lineal relatives to be handed down from generation to generation.
